

INSOFAR as the integrity of institutions go, it's been an ugly two weeks. The Election Commission, entrusted to be independent, has been dismal in performing its duties; from the indelible ink fiasco to the silence on foreign voters flooding in over the last couple of days. The mainstream media is guilty of running fear-mongering ads. So many government agencies have been exploited to aid the incumbent political coalition party return to power.

This is my Home

This isn't how a self-styled 'best democracy in the world' ought to work.

Yes, it's been ugly but it also underscores the amount of work we have to do post GE13. We.

We have to because this is our home.
