Folks, we present our very FIRST contribution from a reader.

We are Malaysians and Proud of It!

Daphne Lee writes:

This pic was taken on the first day of Hari Raya Aidil Fitri, just before we left to visit a Muslim friend.

My kids are half Chinese and half Indian, but we consider ourselves, first and foremost, Malaysian.

That's my eldest son in his baju Melayu :-)

Daphne helps run The Dram Projects , a non-profit company that runs and facilitates literacy programmes and initiatives. One of its key pursuits is children's fundamental rights to education.

We'd be a different nation altogether if there more like you, Daphne. Why, we at SABM would be made obsolete; and we wouldn't mind that one bit!
