

Standing Up

Written by Nanda

Monday, 01 November 2010 19:32 - Last Updated Wednesday, 03 November 2010 00:20

There was a loud rapping of knuckles, rattling the front door at around 10pm, 25th October 2010. Five personnel identified themselves as police officers demanded that the door be opened. Startled, a man in his sarong went to look for the keys while his wife and his kids were looking, terrified at the sudden ongoing at their house. The police officers were in no mood to wait for the keys. They decided to break it open and storm into the house, their actions punctuated with generous amount of profanity.

Soon after, the man in the sarong was detained and beaten in front of his wife.

His wife was then told to bring her husband a pair of pants and to change her husband's sarong there and then. The kids were perplexed and being kids, they began to ask questions. "Where are you taking my dad?". "What's happening?". The questions were met with more profanity from the cops and the man was then beaten up in front of his wife and his kids before being taken away, leaving his family members with no clue as to what just happened and where were they taking him and on what grounds.

The narration above is not the opening scene for a Hollywood movie. It took place at K. Selvachandran's home. Earlier that day, the coroner's court gave an "open verdict" into R Gunasegaran's inquest stating that the cause of his death while in police custody could not be conclusively proven. K. Selvachandran had testified during the inquest, stating that he witnessed one Lance Corporal Mohd Faizal Mat Taib assaulting Gunasegaran before the suspect collapsed and died.

Standing Up

Written by Nanda

Monday, 01 November 2010 19:32 - Last Updated Wednesday, 03 November 2010 00:20

Following a press conference organised by SUARAM and Lawyers for Liberty , a call for action was made to the members of the public, urging them to show their solidarity and to stand together with K. Selvachandran's family and concerned citizens to demand the details of detention and whereabouts of Selva and to make a stand against the apparent high-handed manner in which the police acted, bringing forth claims of abuse of power and police brutality. A memorandum was prepared and was brought to Bukit Aman on 30th October 2010.

Five days without news about the whereabouts of her husband, Saraswathy (Selva's wife) seemed brave but tears did flow.

Standing Up

Written by Nanda

Monday, 01 November 2010 19:32 - Last Updated Wednesday, 03 November 2010 00:20

Copyright © 2010 by Nanda. All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted, in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording, or by any information storage and retrieval system, without the prior written permission of the author.

Standing Up

Written by Nanda

Monday, 01 November 2010 19:32 - Last Updated Wednesday, 03 November 2010 00:20

Tired, we might be, but that is not going to stop us from standing up and speaking out.

Standing Up

Written by Nanda

Monday, 01 November 2010 19:32 - Last Updated Wednesday, 03 November 2010 00:20

But they were silent but their questions and demands were loud enough to be heard by all in

Standing Up

Written by Nanda

Monday, 01 November 2010 19:32 - Last Updated Wednesday, 03 November 2010 00:20

With everything that's happened here, I'm sure you can understand the appeal of standing up to these people. Back

Standing Up

Written by Nanda

Monday, 01 November 2010 19:32 - Last Updated Wednesday, 03 November 2010 00:20

Polite only is getting to know and it is said to be a respectful to the president, Photo: 27, 09, 2010, www.kemkominfo.com