Batman meets Pokemon up in the Selayang skies every weekend. In fact just about every superhero and cartoon character is up there jostling for a square foot to flap about. Down on terra firma, their more common incarnations steer these kites by tugging at strings.

This is the Selayang kite field, just a stone's throw from Batu Caves and fringed by the MRR2.

Amongst people in all walks of life, there is a common thread that binds them together - the longing for a better life. It is a desire that has driven humanity to explore, to discover, to create. It is a desire that has led to the great achievements of science, art, and literature. It is a desire that has shaped the course of human history. And it is a desire that continues to drive us forward, even in the face of adversity. For as long as we have existed, we have sought to improve our lot, to make our lives better. And that is the essence of the human condition. We are not content with what we have; we always want more. We are always striving for something better. And that is what makes us human. We are always reaching for the stars.
